THE DEATH OF MRS. MOORMAN.

Passed Away at Her Home in Hardinsburg Friday at Age of Eighty-Three.

MEMBER OF CHURCH 70 YEARS.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Dec. 8.—(Special.)—At her home in this place, on last Friday, Mrs. Lucretia W. Moorman departed this life, aged eighty-three years. All of her children were present, save one, when the end came. She had been infirm for some time and her death was not unexpected. The funeral services were held the following day at the Baptist church, the Rev. W. H. Fitzgerald officiating. The interment was in the cemetery. Mrs. Moorman was the relict of the late Mr. White Moorman, who died several years since. She was a charter member of the Baptist church at this place and had been a church member for nearly seventy years, the span of human life. She was a beautiful Christian character, and was respected and loved by all who knew her. Seven children survive her, to lament her death and emulate her virtues: Lewis W. Moorman, of Meridian, Miss. Mrs. Hattie Dittie, Mrs. R. N. Skillman, Chapman W. Moorman and Mrs. Lucretia Henley, of Hardinsburg; Mrs. F. H. McKeith, of Irvington, and Mrs. Thos. H. Dittie, of Brandenburg.

To improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. H. Selts, of Detroit, Mich., says, "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such a medicine. For sale by Short & Haynes. Every box warranted.

ROOSEVELT'S VERSATILITY.

President Roosevelt has made a reputation for the diversity of his knowledge pertaining to the history of various countries, cities, peoples and their habits and customs. One day last week he was called upon to address twelve societies and organizations, whose members were presented to him at the White House.

The first was a German singing society. The President began his remarks by talking about music and followed with a tribute to the German people, evincing a wide knowledge of certain minor historical events which was heartily appreciated by his hearers.

The Germans had not gone long until along came a society of Italians and the President tickled them even more than he did the Germans by telling of two or three little events in the history of Italy which had appealed to him. The Italians were pleased and surprised to know that the President of the United States was as familiar with those events as they were themselves.

Then came a band of Westerners from the far away plains of some one of the States in the Northwest. Here the President was decidedly at home. He slapped them on the back, jollied them along in a lively fashion with deer and bear stories and talked about far away ravines, gups, rivers, creeks and fishing holes with as much familiarity and knowledge of the surrounding country as any of his visitors could have done.

To the peanut growers the President made a highly interesting address on the art of planting and growing peanuts, and gave the old planters a few pointers as to how their work should really be done.

To some firemen he gave a few of his ideas as to how a fire should be put out in the shortest space of time.

He never fails to try to impress his hearers with his knowledge and acquaintance with whatever he may represent.

When the President was on his recent trip through the West it is said that he had a list of the names of persons whom he would mention in his speeches in this or that town. He wanted to throw in just a dash of local color here and there. He got mixed on the names and homes of some of his cowboy friends and mentioned their names in places where they were not known and had not even visited. When the President's hearers looked at him with open mouths and blank expressions it dawned upon him that he had dropped a leaf out of his "local color" schedule.

BRIGHT YOUNG LIFE AT END.

Miss Ernestine Nell Drury, formerly of Bewleyville, Dies in Louisville.

INTERMENT AT IRVINGTON.

Irvington, Ky., Dec. 8.—(Special.)—On last Friday at the Irvington Baptist church, and amid a large assembly of sorrowing friends, the funeral exercises were held over the remains of Miss Ernestine Nell Drury, formerly of Bewleyville, who died at her home in Louisville Wednesday, after an illness of nearly three months. The Rev. J. T. Lewis, in appropriate and touching words, spoke of the brief life of this talented and beautiful young woman, just past seventeen years. The choir rendered sweet music, especially the quartette. The floral designs were many and beautiful. The following young friends were active pallbearers: Clarence McGlothlin, Richard Hendon, Rogers Shavers, Harry Harper, John Wells and James Morton, all of Louisville. The honorary pallbearers were Messrs. Harry Kemper, Roy Wimp, Murray Blanford, Tom Drury, Morris Jolly and Overton Blanford. The remains were entombed in beautiful Cedar Hill cemetery.

Grief at Bewleyville.

Bewleyville, Ky., Dec. 8.—(Special.)—The many friends of Miss Ernestine Drury, formerly of this place, are deeply grieved over her death in Louisville. She was beloved by a host of relatives and friends.

PERRY COUNTY FARMERS MEET AT TOBINSPOUT.

The first session of the Perry County (Ind.) Farmers' Institute began at 10:15 o'clock last Friday morning. The meeting was held in the Tobinsport High School building, which will seat several hundred. A large number of people from all parts of Perry county and some from Breckenridge county were present. At most of the sessions the building was well filled and much interest was shown in the discussions and talks by the farmers. The talks were of value and interest to the farmers and, with an excellent musical program, made all the sessions profitable and entertaining to those who attended. One of the pleasant features of the institute was the generous hospitality extended to the visiting farmers and speakers by the good citizens of Tobinsport. The institute was conducted by J. J. Wheeler, of Rome, Ind., the county chairman. The other officers of the institute were D. H. Weatherholt, Vice-chairman, and J. C. Ryan, Secretary, both of Tobinsport.

Friday Morning Session.

This session was opened with the song, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which was followed by the invocation by Rev. Abel Powell.

The first subject, The Pasture, was assigned to Philip Smith, of Prospero. Mr. Smith said that it is a poor business to winter more live, common stock than one has pasture provided for in the spring. Plenty of spring pasture, he said, is beneficial, because poor cattle go begging in the market, crowd on the better cattle, and curtail prices. The pasture is undoubtedly a great asset and the longer it is the better. Not much should be expected from an old field unless you give it something to make it productive.

A. O. Lockridge, of Greensburg, Ind., in speaking on The Fertility of Our Farms, gave his plan for obtaining such. He depends on nature as far as possible to keep up the fertility of his farm. In the fall he sows wheat and then clover in the spring. He keeps his manure in a compact form, to prevent loss of strength, and flushes up manure with snow. As it is an excellent agent for bringing fertility up through the soil, roots of the common red variety having been found six and seven feet deep. After bird-droppings over the field the weeds are cut and his clover springs up. In order to have fertile land it is necessary to have live grass and this he sows on his worst land. One good way to get fertility of all is for the farmer to keep his pond in a good crop all the time.

J. H. Gwaltney, of Peweesville, came next with Good Clover Crops and How to Secure Them. The first important thing, he said, is to secure a good stand by having clean, pure seed, full of life, not allowed to lie in winnow, or swelled or weakened. The best time to sow, he said, is when the earth is frozen just enough to be honeycombed, early in the morning, because the seed goes rolling into little holes and are covered up by the soil when it thaws. An important thing during wheat harvest is to cut the stubble as high as possible so as to leave plenty of mulch to feed the clover during dry weather. But the most important thing at this time is to cut the clover blooms with the mower, because clover stops growing when the bloom is matured and there is a period when it rests. When the clover is clipped there is opportunity for more root growth, which prevents heaving up. If manure is not at hand good results can be obtained by mulching poor plots with straw, to a depth of two inches.

Friday Afternoon.

After a number of discourses on the talks of the forenoon, J. H. Groves, of Rome, Ind., spoke on Corn and Corn Growing. He is a large corn grower, having raised 4,500 bushels on 100 acres this year, and talked about his own methods of cultivating this crop, which is the most important one in Tobia's Bottom. When his meadows get weedy he breaks them up and puts them in the best possible condition for corn. He is very careful in the selection of seed, using an ideal ear. He selects his seed corn all winter, laying aside a one whenever he finds one that comes up to his ideal. His choice is a white ear with white, light cob and large grains.

RECTOR OF ST. LUKE'S.

Ashburnham, Ontario, Testifies to the Good Qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Ashburnham, Ont., April 24, 1903.—I think it is only right that I should tell you what wonderful effect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has produced. The day before Easter I was so distressed with a cold and cough that I did not think to be able to take any duties the next day, as my wife was almost choked by the cough. The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy. I at once procured a sample bottle and took about three doses of the medicine. To my great relief the cough and cold had completely disappeared and I was able to preach three times on Easter Day. I know that this rapid and effective cure was due to your Cough Remedy. I make this testimonial without solicitation, being thankful to have found such a God-sent remedy.

Respectfully yours,
B. A. Langfield, M. A.,

MAKING THEIR OWN WAY.

The most hopeful characteristic of the American colleges is the self-supporting student.

It has been said that any boy in this country who wants an education can get it, if he wants it bad enough. The truth of this is being demonstrated now more clearly than ever before.

There is common complaint that the poor boy's chances to get ahead in the world are not what they used to be. This is not borne out by the facts in any department of life.

Since the beginning young men have worked their way through colleges. Poverty has been no bar.

The growth of the practice is indicated by the report of the Secretary of Columbia College committee on employment of students, from which it appears that Columbia students during the past summer earned $31,401, an increase of $13,000 over their earnings for the year before.

The number of vacation workers this year was nearly 10 per cent of the entire university attendance. The occupations engaged in ranged in variety, from truck driving to the operation of a printing office, and the largest sum earned was $1,000 by a law student.

What the wage-earning student loses from the college course he makes up in practical application of his talents to the real work of life. He is better prepared, perhaps, to step into his chosen occupation when college days are over, than is the fellow student whose way has been made easy, and who knows nothing of the difficulties to be encountered.

The boy who works for his education learns what an education is for, and places it in its proper perspective in his view of life.

No boy need despair because his father is not rich enough to buy him an education. If he wants it bad enough he can get it, and by working for it get something better still along with it.—Cincinnati Post.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Dec. 8.—(Special.)—Messrs. S. A. Pate and P. Morris Beard, on one of their hunting trips last week, bagged a game, that, to say the least, was unusual. It was of the feathered tribe, of a dark gray color, with claws like a hawk and a hawk resembling that of a water fowl. It was about three feet in height, having long legs, and measured three feet from tip to tip. No one has yet been able to give it a name. Its back and wings can be seen at Kinloch's drug store.

PIKE CAMPBELL, Mg'r.

In our largest centers of population, such as New York, Chicago, we daily see the effects of the "inner man" being neglected. Men and women who seem to give all their attention to their outward appearance, are actually starving by neglecting to properly feed their stomachs. It is of course best to eat slowly, but not too fast. The food should be well chewed. The physician to the "Invalids" Hotel and Sanatorium at Lake Geneva, in the nineteenth century people devote so much time to their outward appearance, that they neglect the "inner man" and are not sufficient blood fed to properly take care of the other organs of the body. The "inner man" is neglected in his hard work. The liver started into action—by the use of the "Golden Standard" is entirely of vegetable ingredients and is a most valuable food for the body in an active practice. Dr. Pierce discovered that the liver is the most important food-maker and tissue-builder. He called it the "Golden Standard" because it is the most perfect food in the vegetable and assimilation of the food into the blood. The liver is the most important organ for food and oxidation, the liver is the most important organ for the blood. It is perfect elimination of waste matter from the blood. The liver is the most important organ without effort, and the body is like a perfect machine. Dr. J. C. R. the opening of the great exhibition of 1851. While the choir was singing the hymn, "Christ, our King," a trumpet loudly and solemnly intoned, and the choir promptly retired silently emerged from the crowd and prostrated himself before the throne. No one knew who first had the idea of kneeling, and no one saw himself come so eagerly in England to share in the great duties. The king, chamberlain, greatly perplexed, applied to the queen, and the prince for orders. They were informed that there must be no mistake as to the stranger's rank and that it would be best to place him between the archbishop and the king. The king then went to Wellington. In this position of honor the Chamberlain, with unguessed dignity, walked through the buildings to the throne. Next day it was discovered that he was the keeper of a Chinese junk which had just cast anchor in the harbor. He was not invited to the feast on payment of a shilling a head.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1903.

Dr. Milton Borg, of Hardinsburg, is announced, will get the appointment of Superintendent of the Hopkinsville Asylum. This comes as a reward for services rendered and the News is glad of it. When a man does good work he should be rewarded. If the Doctor makes as good a Superintendent, which we have every reason to believe he will, as he has a party manager the Asylum will be well taken care of. We don't admire the Doctor's method in politics but it is to be hoped that he will get on a higher plain when it comes to running a state institution. This he will do we are sure, for he is capable and competent. His appointment will meet with universal approval by his friends and Democrats in this county. This is the second time this place has been filled by Breckenridge county men and both of them from Hardinsburg.

The Christmas Dinner.

In spite of the fact that the word dyspepsia means literally bad cook, it will not be fair for many to lay the blame on the cook if they begin Christmas Dinner with little appetite and end it with distress or nausea. It may not be fair for any to do that let us hope so for the sake of the cook. The disease dyspepsia indicates a bad stomach, that is a weak stomach, rather than a bad cook, and a weak stomach there is nothing else equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives the stomach vigor and tone, cures dyspepsia, creates appetite, and makes eating the pleasure it should be.

Little Conley Tilford.

As the public press had nothing to say about the long illness and death of this little boy, I will write this tribute to his memory, as much as to the friends of Mr. Tilford along the Branch and main line of the L. & St. L. railroad, as to little Conley's relatives.

Jesus Conley Tilford was the oldest son of J. J. and M. E. Tilford. He was born March 7, 1887, and died March 14, 1903, of spinal meningitis at the age of fourteen. Twelve of these years he was afflicted with that painful disease which terminated his young life.

From a small child he was remarkably fond of military display. He delighted to see the glittering uniforms of the soldiers, and nothing pleased him better than for a military man to visit him in full uniform, and to hear an old soldier talk of the battles of his youth, and those that had read it were reminded of the poem of the farmer's son, who, "Born to wear a uniform."

He liked the music of the snare drum, and the Grand Army men used to please him with music on that instrument.

For some years he was a prominent person in his hand-carriage on the streets of Fordville; and, during the Spanish-American war, to please him, his father bought him a uniform on the order of the fatigue uniform of a soldier of the United States army of that time. But this was too tame clothing for him, for what he wanted was a full uniform like that of the commander of the Grand Army Post at Fordville. At that time, young as he was, he didn't talk like a boy, but like a well informed man, on the general topics of the time.

He was of an even temper of mind, and, during the years I knew him, I never saw him other than in a good humor, and I never saw him relax from that state of dignity of a strong and commanding mind. To the many who supposed to speak to him, as he sat in his carriage on the public thoroughfares, he answered their questions politely, and always said that he thought his health was improving. Months before his death he was confined to his room and, though gradually growing weaker, his mind was as strong as in good health. To note the passing events of the day, he had his bed moved to a front window, where he saw all that passed, and at night his notes of the day's occurrences were like they had been collected for the public press. He was well posted on all military affairs, and his bed was nearly covered with the latest papers.

He was fond of military paintings, and portraits of military men were taken to him and hung on the walls, where he could see them. At times he would tell his visitors some interesting event and at others he would whistle as merrily as a farmer at work in his field, and in this manner he lived till the last moments of his life, and was conscious when the summons came. All that medical skill, fond parents and kind friends could do for him was done, all of which he appeared thankful for.

He died on that awful night to the people of Cloverport, and as he breathed his last the northern horizon was lit up with the glare of the burning of their beautiful little city.

Though little Conley, as he was called, was fourteen years old, he was hardly as large as a boy of half that age. He was very emaciated and there is no doubt that his strong spirit, which contended so long with his fatal disease, prolonged his life for a number of years.

His funeral was the most impressive ever witnessed in Fordville. Conductor Tilford, his father, spared no means to have his little son's funeral as imposing as he had been esteemed when living. His casket was taken to order by the Louisville Coffin Co., the hearse and other funeral equipage was the best to be obtained at that time, and the religious exercises were very pathetic, and, as the countless throngs gathered around the grave, they were reminded of the following lines of Dr. Watts' hymn:

"I will thy bosom, faithful trust,
Take this new treasure to thy trust,
And give thee rest and relief from
To slumber in the silent dust."

The remains were laid in a brick vault the brick being the best article of Cloverport brick, and the vault was made water-tight with hydraulic cement. Little Conley's grave is but a few steps from the entrance of the Fordville Cemetery, and near the tall monument of John M. Johnson. His grave is marked by a beautiful monument from the noted marble works of J. E. Keith & Son, of Cloverport. These gentlemen spared neither labor nor means to make it a first-class job of workmanship, worthy of the noble young spirit whose remains lie beneath it. The base of the monument is from Bedford, Ind. The die is Vermont blue granite, and the roll at the top of Scotch red granite, imported by the Messrs. Keith from Scotland. The cylinder, or roll, contains but one word, "Tilford," while the die has this inscription, "Jesus Conley, son of J. J. and M. E. Tilford, born March 7, 1887, died March 14, 1903. He lived the life of a good soldier, brave and true."

Had Conley lived to manhood, and his health been equal to the strength of his mind, he would have no doubt made a soldier in the front ranks of the American army; but a wise and good Providence decreed it otherwise, and his young spirit only surrendered to that last foe which the bravest of the brave can not subdue.

The presents which was given to Conley during his sickness were many, and consist of books, paintings, photographs, cards and buttons, puzzles, knives and other novelties, and his father will have them catalogued and placed in a cabinet on the order of a museum of sacred relics.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilford not only wish their many friends at Fordville and its community to accept their lasting thanks for their friendly visits and aid during the long illness and death of their little son, but the railroad people and their many friends along the branch and main line, for their cordial sympathy during their long and sad bereavement.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the skin which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

A Reasonable Analysis of Disease.

To restore anatomical abnormalities to the normal and to harmonize physiological discord is the scope of Osteopathy and no system or scheme of treatment can attempt to do more. Viewed in this light it is not so hard to understand how scientific manipulations of the body tissues can cure disease—they restore anatomical order! First osteopathy harmonizes the functional discord, in a word, "cures."

YOUR UNCLE FULLER HAS ANOTHER CHANCE.

To the Editor of the News:
In your issue of November 23, I see a letter from Mr. John Elder about the Old Fiddler's contest given at Cloverport. I was surprised when I read it. He must be the tip-top Van Winkle family and has not awakened yet. Now, to make a long story short, we'll ask John Deane, of Cloverport, to give us his opinion of the so-called contest, and also John Ball, of Harbington, who played the first fiddle. I say that both of these men know old-fashioned music when they hear it, and if a man has not heard it he knows but a little about it.

Mr. Elder said that if I could pick the next set of judges I might win. If I do I will say this, that I will bring down to the front so you can see who they are, and not have them scattered all over the whole country. I think if any man was going to be tried for his life he would like to see and know the jury so he could form some idea of his chance.

How, boy, it is all over and we had lots of fun. Now come down to the fair thing and if you don't know any old-time tunes just say so. I know you know some old pieces but you can't play them like they were played fifty years ago. I hope we will meet in the near future and try it over. Wishing the News all the good luck possible and you all a happy Christmas. I remain Yours truly

Glendene, Ky.
Loris Ashby.

Reverent lament.
A sure sign of approaching revolt and serious trouble in your system is nervousness, sleeplessness or stomach upsets. Electric Bitters will quickly dislodge the troublesome causes. It never fails to tone the stomach, regulate the Liver and cleanse the blood. Run down systems benefit particularly and all the aches attending such vanish under its searching and thorough effectiveness. Electric Bitters is only one, and it is returned if it don't give perfect satisfaction (guaranteed by Short & Haynes, Druggists).

In Memory of Mrs. Polk.

It is sad to write the death of our dear friend and neighbor, Mrs. G. L. Polk who departed this life Nov. 24. She was ill seven long months with cancer of the spleen and was a constant sufferer. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. F. Winchell of the Baptist church, of which she was a member. The interment was in the upper cemetery.

Mrs. Polk was the daughter of Thomas and Rebecca Lynch, of Pateville, Ky. She had four children, and three brothers, a husband and three small children one little lad that will never know a mother's love. It falls to our lot to shed tears over one so loved and well liked but we must ever be ready to say, "Thy will not ours be done." She was a true wife, a fond mother, a faithful friend, all we could have wished her to be. She was a patient sufferer and was never known to murmur only that she supposed it was all right. Her friends who stood by her and were ever ready to help her suffering often heard her say, there was nothing in death she dreaded only to leave her husband and children. That she soon would be with loved ones gone before, while she had loved ones to live for she had something to die for. The last few hours she lived she had her friends to sing "This so sweet to trust in Jesus." She tried to join in the song but was too weak, and only could whisper her name, and say, "oh how sweet, how sweet."

She has now gone to a world where in the bosom of her God she will be happy with congenial spirits. May the memory of her future be ever green in the hearts of her surviving friends. Her family has no heart felt sympathy. And ever we remember our loss is Heaven's gain.

NEWS FROM PELLVILLE.

Changes Made in Business Firms— Farmers Are Awakening to An Important Fact.

Pellville, Ky., Dec. 8 (Special).—Farmers are awaking to a sobering lesson. They fear they will not realize a big price but are anxious to dispose of their crop in some way. They are awakening to the fact that a farmer cannot live by tobacco alone and will try to raise something better for their wives and children to live on.

While it is a fact that most all good timber is gone there are two large sawmills in sight of Pellville running a full force of hands and sawing from before day until after dark. About twenty teams are employed in hauling the lumber to Owensboro.

Walter Whitte has sold his blacksmith shop to L. C. Trege, of Chambers. Mr. Whitte will go to Emsw and Mr. Trege moves to this place.

Gay Temple and Mort Mosely have involved Hawes & Birk's stock of goods preparatory to moving them to Yelvington.

Bion Mosely and W. L. Ashworth sold to Emmett Haynes three steers for 2 1/2 cents that weighed 920 pounds each.

In Memory of Nannie Lee Jolly.

"Not changed but glorified." Oh heavenly language, for those who weep.

Mourning the loss of a dear face fallen asleep, hushed into silence, never more to comfort our hearts. Done like the sunshine of another country.

Beyond our ken. What wonder that we stumble, faint and weeping.

And sink with fear. Since then has left me all alone with sorrow.

And blind with tears.

"How will it look, the dear face we have cherished.

When next we meet? Will it be changed, so glorified, so saintly.

That we shall know it not?

"In the clear morning of that other country.

In Paradise. With the same face, that we have loved and cherished.

She shall arise."

"And we shall find one more, beyond earth's sorrows.

Beyond these skies. In the fair city of the sure foundations.

These heavenly eyes. With the same welcome shining through their sweetness.

That gazed upon us here."

"Think of us, dearest one, while on life's waters.

We seek the land, Missing thy voice, thy touch, and the true helping.

Of thy pure hand. Till, through the storm and tempest, safely anchored.

Just on the other side. We find thy dear face looking through death's shadow.

"N't changed, but glorified". Irvington, Ky.

THE MEGIDDO MISSION BOAT

Stops at This Point and Capt.
Nichols Preaches in Two of the Churches.

THE BOAT AND ITS PEOPLE.

The mission boat, Megiddo, arrived here from Leavenworth, Ind., about noon last Wednesday and landed at the lower wharf. Wednesday afternoon the boat's brass band marched through the principal streets and that evening Capt. L. T. Nichols, the leader of the missionaries, preached at the Baptist church to a large congregation. The boat remained here over Thursday, services were held by those who live on it in the Presbyterian church that evening and, on Friday morning, the Megiddo continued its trip down the Ohio.

The Boat and Its People

The mission boat derives its name from the Hebrew word "Megiddo," which means "God is in this place with a band of troops."

The mission boat is a three-deck steamer, 300 feet long by 40 feet wide. It is propelled by 250 horse-power engines and heated by steam. There are fifty state rooms, forty-eight of which are 9 feet by 12 feet, the other two being larger. These state rooms are on the first, second and "Texas" decks. On the second deck is a large chapel, used as a meeting and sitting room. The chapel is 20 feet by 30 feet, with seats to accommodate the seventy-five persons on board. On the first deck are two dining rooms. Each family has separate cupboards in dining room and kitchen, and some families have private dining rooms. The kitchen, where thirty women do their own cooking, is 16 feet by 30 feet. Back of the kitchen, in the rear of the first deck, is the engine room and machinery for doing iron and wood work. The boiler room is in the first compartment on the lower deck. In the second deck are the greater number of the state rooms. On the third deck, near the stern, are the steam tubs for washing clothes and the steam drying room. Here also are found the pilot's room and the schoolroom for the fifteen children on board. The boat is a model of convenience and economical space, but the state rooms are the most attractive and neatly appointed apartments. There are thirty families and a state room for each family, but more if they have children. The state rooms are arranged something similar to those on a regulation steamer, but every one is furnished differently in everything except the carpets. All are neatly and comfortably furnished and are kept spotlessly clean.

The exterior of the boat is worthy of some notice. Suspended between the two smokestacks are the following words, in large letters, "United We Stand," and just over the foremast "In God We Trust." A carpenter's bench and room for storing provisions are also found on the barge.

The boat was partially built at Lyons, La., in the summer and fall of 1901 and then completed and the engine built at Memphis, Tenn., several months later. Since then the missionaries have been holding meetings at large points on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, in the gospel tent during the warm months and in churches during the colder weather.

The Christian Mission

The people who live on the boat call themselves Christian Brethren, and, in the words of Capt. L. T. Nichols, their leader, they "are out doing all the good they can and are stopping at all points where they can get a church to hold services in." Each family provides its own provisions and does its own work. On the boat are a first-class tailor, clerks, paper hangers, painters, signwriters, machinists, carpenters, teamsters, electricians, pasterers, etc. The men do work in the cities where they stop and the women make and sell family work. All have devoted their lives to the cause of truth and are ready and willing to work at any honorable employment. There are no harsh words or angry quarrels between them and peace, harmony and love prevail. Not a single person aboard uses tobacco, liquor, coffee or tea and all endeavor to live the ideal Christian life.

Capt. Nichols, who is the inventor of the boat and the originator of mission and object, does most of the preaching, being assisted by Mrs. Maude Henshaw, a learned woman evangelist. He says that his object is to proclaim what he honestly believes is the truth, and he has never accepted one dollar's salary. By a number of profitable inventions he has been able to spend thousands of dollars in proclaiming what he honestly believes to be the truth, in both Europe and America. Capt. Nichols says in one of his booklets: "Truth was the gem for which I sought," and my soul's longing cry was "O, tell me where it can be found." After years of careful study, I rejoice with joy unexpressed to know that I have found the gem for which I sought, and hold in my hands the blessed Bible, knowing that between its pages there are no impossibilities, contradictions, or absurdities."

The boat has an excellent band of twenty-two pieces that is composed of both sexes. On board are two organs, a piano, and a base violin, which are used in their services in the chapel.

Capt. Nichols's Sermon

Capt. Nichols and his band held divine services in the Baptist church on last Wednesday evening. At the opening and closing of the services, the brass band played several hymns. It would play one verse and then the choir, composed of the missionaries, would sing a verse, accompanied by the vocation. The music and singing was good and highly appreciated by the congregation, which filled the church.

Capt. Nichols preached about an hour and a half. The general opinion of his sermon was that it was very sensible and orthodox in tone. He gave no opinions of his own, but merely quoted from the Bible to prove other quotations, showing that there are no contradictions therein. The main purport of his sermon, it seemed, was to show that, unless we learn and know the scriptures, we cannot have faith, that wisdom is the principal thing, the tree of life.

Capt. Nichols said that he believes the time is near at hand when men will turn their ears away from truth and he and his followers are now out in the drying world trying to get the people back. "We believe," he said, in the old, ancient gospel of Christ and believe in preaching the word of truth. "It is not a question," he said, "if you are in line with any church or denomination but in line with Jesus." His object, he said, in preaching his doctrine, is not to tell people out of their churches, but to stir up their minds and get them to read bolder lives. You can't come to Jesus, he said, unless you read the Scriptures. Coming to Jesus, he said, is learning and doing all things God commands us to do.

Capt. Nichols's voice is low and penetrating. He never once opened his Bible while preaching, as he knows it mentally from his head. While concluding his sermon he said that if he had personally offended any person in the audience by his talk that their pardon was asked.

Capt. Nichols's Second Sermon

Capt. Nichols preached to a large congregation at the Presbyterian church Thursday evening. The services held were of the same nature as those held at the Baptist church the preceding evening, but the sermon was far different. Capt. Nichols quoted a number of truths from the Bible and interpreted them in a way far from orthodox. He never once told anything as his own opinion, but said that it was what the Bible said. For argument he quoted some other or chapter to prove his argument. Everything he said was very convincing. In the way he told it, and many thoughts, of a startling nature, were put before the people for the first time in their lives. All were impressed with his profound knowledge of the Bible and none could deny that what he said was not in the Holy Book, according to his interpretation.

Part of Capt. Nichols's sermon was orthodox and does not, therefore, need much notice. His more startling views are given in brief.

He said, in substance, that man can't live in sin all his life and then, at the last minute, ask for mercy and be saved. "Adam was no more the first man than you are," he said to the audience. To prove this statement he quoted from that part of the Bible which says that those in Heaven are without number and said that such a thing couldn't be if Adam was the first man. According to the present doctrine, he said, that God could not have had mercy on anyone from eternity to eternity if there wasn't anyone here in Neptune there were many happy souls before Adam, he said. Paul's testimony is that earthly salvation is according to the eternal salvation and he compared the earth to eternal salvation as a part of it. The time will come, he said, when we will annex earth to Heaven, new worlds will be made and men created, and we will rule over Neptune, Jupiter and the other planets.
